Geoff Hurst

There's nothing worse than losing at home, particularly at this stage of the season. But, the manner in which we were defeated here by Watford two weeks ago made it all the more disappointing. We played quite well for the first twenty minutes, but because a goal didn't come we lost all our discipline and accuracy of passing and let our heads drop when there was still everything to play for. I'd have to be a psychiatrist to explain why we played as if in the bottom three rather than in the top three. We must persevere and battle away for the whole ninety minutes whatever happens. That will at least send most of our faithful crowd home a little happier in the knowledge that we never give up without a fight. Nobody could be satisfied with our performance on that occasion. After the match we had a lengthy meeting in the changing rooms and it has been made clear to everyone that however our results go, we must have total commitment for the remainder of the season.

There was a significant improvement at Deepdale last week and we played well enough in the first half to have gone in with a clear lead. There were a number of occasions when a goal looked on the cards — but it was not to be and the goal we conceded right on half-time killed us off for a while. It was the second time in two weeks that we had lost a match through an individual error. A manager cannot budget for these. All one must do is score goals to cover these errors up — they become magnified when a side is struggling to do that. Very bad mistakes that they were, one must expect players, particularly young ones, to make errors of judgement occasionally — it's only human.

My feeling at the moment is that we can still make promotion — this is what we're getting across to the players. We may be out of the top three, but let's hope that this means the pressure will be off us a little. I shall be watching how Sheffield Wednesday and Grimsby react to the extra publicity and pressure that follows clubs who are pushing for promotion. It's their turn now — we've been up there in the spotlight for two years and not reacted very favourably to it. It will be interesting to see how they manage. They may well have hit the top too early — after all, before last Saturday's matches there was still a quarter of the season left to play and as we know from last season's experience, a lot can happen in that time.

If we win the points in our next few games there is no reason why we can't do it. We have as much chance of going up now as we've had all season. My job is to get that through to the players. They offered me a lot more at Preston and I think they are in a better frame of mind having improved their performance — but now it's got to be done at home.

MIKE FILLERY

Twenty-year old Mike Fillery continues a Chelsea tradition for stylish midfield players. Since his debut as substitute in the home match against Derby County here on April 4th 1979 Mike has made 74 League appearances scoring 11, often spectacular, goals. This season's effort at Orient comes to mind as a fine example of what this talented young player is capable of. His overall performance in that match was enthused upon in all quarters — several members of the press compared Mike to a younger Trevor Brooking — and he holds this game in mind as the standard to aim for every week. "I'm working hard to become more consistent in my game and play like I did that night in each match. That's one of my faults at the moment, inconsistency. Also I try and play football in areas where I should really be content on just clearing the ball out of danger. I was sick about last week's mistake at Preston when I tried to find space to clear the ball yet keep it in play. Those of you who were there last week will know that I lost possession and this led to Preston scoring the only goal. Still, once you've made a mistake there's no point in worrying about it as that would only affect your game. I just don't like giving the ball away and would much rather attempt to play my way out of trouble. I think, in time experience will tell me when and when not to do this. Generally, though, I'm pleased with my game and the way my career has gone. I owe everything to my Dad who was a player himself with Tooting and Mitcham and Maidstone. Funnily enough he had the chance of signing for Chelsea too, but in those days he could earn a better living by playing non-League football and working. That was in the time that Ted Drake was manager, and I think my Dad has still got his letter at home. He has been a tremendous influence on me during the years and has taught me everything I know. It was through him that I joined Chelsea. He knew Dario Gradi when he was here, (who is of course now in charge at Crystal Palace) and this led to Dario watching me and inviting me to train at the Club.

I was eleven then. Since then I have progressed through the youth and reserve sides along with several other players in the present first-team.

Also I was lucky enough to be selected for the England Youth and Schoolboy squads and played alongside Clive Allen, Gary Shaw, and Andy Ritchie to name a few. That was a great experience. Of course, like any other player my ambition is to play for my country at full international level but the next match is always the most important and I shall just take each game as it comes. People have made comparisons with Trevor Brooking, which is a tremendous compliment, but I'm not really the same sort of player and am still only a young bud in the game.

Quite frankly I don't think it pays to believe too much of what people say in this game, particularly the press. But it's a great life and I consider myself very lucky to be a footballer. Times have certainly changed since the day's when my father had an opportunity to play professionally. Although he was a player in South London where we lived, it was that team in the north, Manchester United who I used to support with those great players, Bobby Charlton and George Best. I suppose they were my idols, although I used to like to watch Charlie Cooke play here on the rare occasions I wasn't watching my father play.

It was disappointing to miss out on promotion last season, as we all want to play in the First Division, but we're not out of the running. We must aim to win every game. I hope we do for our great supporters — we must have the best set of away fans in the land and they're quite noisy down here as well!"

AN INTERESTING IDEA

Sir, As prices are rising all the time — programme and ground prices, travel, etc., is it not worth it to give reductions to the thousands of loyal fans who turn up at every home match. One way of doing this would be to issue tokens in each home programme. Then reductions would be made in entrance costs according to how many matches the individual has watched the season before. We, that's Cis, Bill, Dave, Pete, Keith, Essie, Mick, Jim, Tom and myself who travel from Bedford to all possible home and away matches, wish the team all the best for the rest of the season and thank them for making our Saturday trips around the country worthwhile.

'Loyal Bedford Blue'

Dave Furnival,

44 Hookhams Lane, Salph
End, Renhold, Bedford MK41
OJU.

We are not sure that the method you suggest i.e. tokens in the programme, would be practical, or even fair as owning a programme does not necessarily prove that one was present at that particular match. However, thank you for the idea, Dave; we wonder, have you and your friends considered purchasing terrace season tickets?

PROGRESS ON ALL FRONTS

Sir, I would like to congratulate the club on taking the initiative against racism at Stamford Bridge. True Chelsea supporters treat all players equally whatever colour, creed or religion they may be of. May I also say that I am sadly pleased to hear of the possibility of the Shed coming down; sad because it will always be a part of Chelsea's history and pleased because it is an inevitable step forward in combating hooliganism and providing the comforts necessary in bringing back our lost supporters.

D.S. London N.20.

MORE PROGRAMMES NEEDED

Sir, I am trying to compile a collection of at least one away programme from each of the 92 League clubs in a first-team (Cup, League or friendly) match against Chelsea.

So far I have 77 clubs, the missing 15 falling into three groups:-

1 — Bournemouth, Chester and Rochdale which are all post-war but still quite rare.

2 — Barnsley, Bradford City, Port Vale, Reading and Stockport none of whom we've played away since the 1920's and so are extremely rare.

3 — Colchester, Halifax, Mansfield, Newport, Peterborough, Wigan and Torquay. I can find no trace of us ever having played any of these clubs away in a first-team match of any kind. Can any fellow supporter throw any light on this group?

How about Chelsea breaking new ground by playing a few of this last group in next year's pre-season friendlies!

A QUICK PREDICTION

Sir, I know it's a bit early to talk about promotion and to make predictions, but..... my three to go up are Chelsea, West Ham and Swansea in that order!

We're not sure about catching West Ham, but second place? That will do fine, Trevor!

Bolton Manager Stan Anderson holds a clearly defined view of his task at Burnden Park. "In my estimation," he says, "the board, and possibly the supporters, have given me three years to get back up. We have to do it within that time. If in three years, Bolton are still a Second Division side, it will be necessary for someone to make a few decisions." Bold talk indeed from the former England wing-half and previous manager to a veritable mixed bag of clubs — Doncaster Rovers, Greece and Middlesbrough. Now, in Bolton's Centenary season, Anderson's team are in the wrong half of the table with over a third of his assumed time already gone. He took over from Ian Greaves last January when the side were everyone's bet for relegation back to the Second Division. Sensibly, with the writing so clearly on the wall he planned for life in the Second toward the end of the season in the hope that a settled side could be found to lead the promotion hunt. His plans were not without setbacks. Regular goalkeeper, Jim McDonagh, with 161 League appearances for Bolton left for Everton — Sam Allardyce (with 184) joined Sunderland — Roy Greaves and Willie Morgan also departed and midfield star Peter Reid, desperate to leave Burnden Park for any First Division club chose to take no further part in League action — although he has in fact made eight appearances this season.

"That's what happens when you go down," says Anderson. "Ambitious players want to stay at the top. It took us so long to get into the First Division that they feel now they can't afford another year out of it."

Bolton have been involved in battles either for promotion, or against relegation, for the past five seasons. In 1976 and 1977 they missed promotion to Division One by only one point each time. In 1978 they won their due reward as Second Division champions (and there is some solace there for Chelsea fans), thus returning to the First Division after an absence of sixteen years.

TODAY'S SQUAD:

Goalkeeper TERRY POOLE was signed from Huddersfield Town in January 1977 for a fee of £25,000. After many seasons of patient waiting as understudy to McDonagh, Terry won the first-choice keeper's position over DENNIS PEACOCK who joined from Doncaster Rovers last March. Right full-back MIKE GRAHAM joined the Wanderers from school and made the break-through onto the senior scene in 1978-79. A strong tackling full-back, he looks to have a very bright future in the game. Left-back GERRY McELHINNEY signed from Distillery at the beginning of the season. A former Gaelic footballer and amateur boxer, he made his debut for the Wanderers on the 6th September against Bristol Rovers. PAUL JONES, Bolton centre-half has been a member of England's Under-23 and full squads. He has made nearly 400 appearances for Wanderers. IAN BRENNAN joined Bolton last December from Burnley, where he made over 200 appearances in the League side. DUSAN NIKOLIC, a Yugoslavian International, was signed from Red Star Belgrade — one of Petar Borota's previous teams — last September. He also holds 11 Under-23 caps and 24 at youth level. Although he has played in Bolton's last seven matches, his appearances have been limited by a knee injury. DAVE BURKE emerged onto the first team scene at the start of season 1978-79 as a full-back, but recently he has adopted a mid-field role. Born in Cheshire, he made his senior debut against us in the League Cup two seasons ago. Last season's top scorer NEIL WHATMORE has also appeared in Wanderers midfield this season. He has scored ten goals so far, and is always a dangerous player around the penalty area. DAVID HOGAN joined Bolton from Tynecastle Boys Club, Edinburgh, as an apprentice in November 1977 and signed full professional forms in 1979. A midfield player or striker who is always ready to shoot from any range. CHRIS THOMPSON is a speedy attacker who joined the Wanderers from school. An England Youth International, who has made only a handful of appearances this season. JOHN THOMAS is another of the new generation of Bolton strikers. Another fast player he was signed from Everton for a free transfer in June 1980. ALAN GOWLING, who is Chairman of the players' union, the PFA, signed for a £120,000 fee from Newcastle United three seasons ago after four years at St. James' Park. Started his career with Manchester United and then moved to Huddersfield. PHIL WILSON came into the League side last January and kept his place until the end of the season. A tough little midfield player who normally appears in the No. 4 shirt for Wanderers.

We began strongly at Deepdale last Saturday but conceded a poor goal and saw the game gradually slip away as the minutes ticked by.

PRESS REPORT	"Trevor Brooking had them dancing in the aisles with a stunning solo performance topped off by two of the best goals seen anywhere this season. A capacity crowd repeatedly rose to their feet to salute a player whose ice-cool finishing cut-out Chelsea's heart. For his opener in the 26th minute he strode through the centre of mid-field and, as Chelsea fanned out anticipating a characteristic wide pass, Brooking unleashed a fiercely bending left-footer from 25 yards. His second-half effort was even more spectacular. The ball broke to Brooking 20 yards out and he looked up, deliberately set his sights and bent an astonishing right-foot shot around Borota into the top left-hand corner. Ironically, Chelsea could have gone in front two minutes before Brooking scored his first but Peter Rhoades-Brown was denied by a splendid save by Phil Parkes. Chelsea never stopped battling and played some inventive, attractive football. But with Bonds shutting out Mayes and Martin master of Lee, West Ham rarely looked like conceding a goal. Chelsea dominated the opening 15 minutes of the second half before David Cross swooped for his 25th goal of the season. That put the result beyond doubt. Devonshire rubbed salt in Chelsea's wound, waltzing around the stranded Borota before turning in Number Four." (Tony Roche — Sunday Mirror)	"Petar Borota, Chelsea's eccentric Yugoslav goalkeeper, has often threatened embarrassment with his entertaining, if ill-advised, dashes beyond the penalty area. Yesterday there was a very red face between the Chelsea posts. After 58 minutes, the man affectionately known as the Clown Prince of Stamford Bridge left his line like an Olympic sprinter, but his attempt at an interception failed to connect with either man or ball 25 yards from goal. Poskett, the on-rushing Watford attacker, was then left with the relatively simple task of evading the desperate lunges of pursuing defenders and putting the ball into an unguarded net. So Watford were on their way to recording their first away win in the League this season. Perhaps they deserved such a reward for, enterprisingly they played with three men forward for most of the game. Ward being preferred to Callaghan on the right, was a telling factor in their success with his pace down the flanks and willingness to try the early cross. Chelsea made no such use of the width of the pitch, with Lee and Mayes seemingly fixed to tramlines running up and down the centre. Even when Chelsea brought on their flamboyant winger Walker, their tactics did not vary." (Simon Jones — Sunday Telegraph)

The moment of... IMPACT!!

And it's clearly a painful one for Colin Lee as he collides with Watford's Jackett and Sims two weeks ago. Unfortunately, a similar collision in training robbed us of Colin's services at Preston last week, but he has an even chance of being fit for selection this afternoon.

Chelsea Through The Years

PART 63 SEASON 1978-1979

Never at any time during the nine months of the 1978-1979 season did it seem likely that Chelsea would avoid relegation. The team which at times had promised so much twelve months earlier was ruthlessly exposed as lacking the necessary experience and "know-how"; confidence and morale were steadily drained with one bad result following another with depressing regularity. When manager Ken Shellito resigned on December 14th, the position was already desperate. Two wins and eight points from 18 games had firmly anchored us in bottom place. Two months earlier protracted negotiations had taken place with Miljan Miljanic, the famous Yugoslav coach, in an endeavour to add his expertise and skill to the Stamford Bridge training staff. In October he spent ten days studying the club at close quarters and then, two days before Shellito's departure and after much consideration, he decided he would not be joining us as "technical director", but rather had accepted the post of Yugoslav national team coach. Almost immediately Danny Blanchflower was appointed manager, initially on a "month-to-month" basis, and within hours had had the enormity of his task underlined by a 7-2 defeat at Middlesbrough in a match which marked Peter Osgood's return to Chelsea, via Southampton and Philadelphia Furies. Two consecutive victories in the New Year, at Manchester City and against Birmingham, eased us into 21st place and even suggested a possible escape act was under way, but such thoughts were swiftly shown to be illusory when another succession of adverse results followed. Arsenal's 5-2 victory, at Highbury on Easter Monday made it mathematically certain that we would be returning to the Second Division after a two-year gap.

During the season Bill Garner was given a free transfer to Cambridge United; Kenny Swain moved to Aston Villa; and Steve Wicks joined Tommy Docherty at Derby. Signings, again severely restricted by financial impositions, included the talented, if somewhat mercurial, Duncan McKenzie from Everton, Scottish midfield man Eamonn Bannon from Hearts, and, at the beginning of March, the Yugoslav international goalkeeper, Petar Borota, to take over from Peter Bonetti. No fewer than 31 players made first-team appearances as a recipe for success was sought. In this kaleidoscope Ron Harris, as ever, stood out as the stalwart of the defence; Graham Wilkins and newcomer David Stride were regular fullbacks; Garry Stanley and a below-par Ray Wilkins formed the basis of our midfield; and Tommy Langley, chasing tirelessly, often played a lone hand up front, amazingly scoring 16 goals in the process.

When Arsenal arrived for the final home fixture, on May 14th, the depression of a miserable season was momentarily put on one side as Bonetti played his 600th, and final, League game for Chelsea. Bracketed with Vic Woodley as Chelsea's greatest-ever 'keeper his brilliant career spanned 21 years at Stamford Bridge. His debut, under the managership of Ted Drake, was alongside such well remembered names as the Sillett brothers, Peter Brabrook, Jimmy Greaves, and Frank Blunstone. He had played a major part in all three of the major cup triumphs in our history and his greatest misfortune was to find himself contemporary with Gordon Banks, whose form and consistency restricted him to seven full appearances for England.

So as a 28,000 crowd bade their sad farewells, our lowest-ever points total (20) and fewest League wins (5) was out of mind as we pondered on Miljanic's diagnosis of our ills. "It is largely a question of psychology," he had said. "The players need to believe in themselves."

● GARY LEE

Chelsea Football Club extends deepest sympathy to the parents and relatives of 23-year-old Gary Lee, who died so tragically at Preston last Saturday when he slipped and fell twenty feet on his way to the match. Gary was the son of Mrs. Breda Lee, a committee member of the Chelsea Official Supporters' Club. Together, they travelled to all away games. We know that all Chelsea supporters share our feelings for his family in their profound sorrow.

● HOWARD PARNES

Even though his condition was known to us, it came as a great shock to learn of the tragic death of Howard Parnes in Hove earlier this month. Howard was truly one of our finest supporters. We have lost a most genuine friend. To his wife, Brenda, and two daughters we offer our sincere condolences.

● OUR NEW DIRECTOR

We warmly welcome Major Alan Dobson M.B.E., who has accepted the Club's invitation to join the Board. Major Dobson served in the Grenadier Guards for 33 years in a distinguished Army career. He has been involved in football throughout his life first as a player and later as a referee in which position he achieved Southern League status and currently serves on the F.A. Referee's Committee and is a F.I.F.A. instructor. An F.A. Counsellor and Vice-Chairman of the Instructional Committee and long-standing Chelsea supporter, we are delighted that Major Dobson's acceptance will strengthen a very firm bond of friendship and co-operation that we enjoy with the Army.

● TWO FOR THE FUTURE

Youth Development Officer, Gwyn Williams and Geoff Hurst are seen welcoming our two most recent additions to the junior ranks. Top, is Keith Jones who plays for Wandsworth, Inner London County and London Schools and who has been selected for the F.A. Under-15 International v Northern Ireland at Wembley on March 28th. Below is, David Brench who represents Buckinghamshire Schools F.A. U-14 and the Hayes and District League team. He is a striker, who has been top League goalscorer for the past three years. Welcome Keith and David and we look forward to the day when you break into first-team duty.
